LA FORZA DEL DESTINO.

This new opera of Verdi's, which will be played to-night for the first time in Buenos Ayres, is a tragedy in 4 acts, full of romantic incident of the 'love and murder' description. The scene is laid partly in Spain and then in Italy, about 100 years ago.

The plot may be briefly sketched as follows [we need not remind our readers of its resemblance to the sad tale of 'Vilikins and his Dinah']-The Marquis of Calatrava, a hidalgo of Seville, had a very pretty daughter named Leonora, who fell in love with a young Peruvian named Alvaro: the old gentleman would not give his consent and a ladder of ropes was provided, but just as the young people were about to elope, the Marquis rushed into the room with his servants. Act. 4. Charles, who was not slain in the duel, tracks the unhappy Alvaro to the convent and is again bent on mischief. Alvaro, after various struggles with his conscience and every attempt to assuage the remorseless scion of Calatrava, again fights a duel with him and mortally wounds him. Leonora attracted by the din rushes out of her grotto, discovers her brother line. dying and while embracing him he stabs her to the heart, then dies. She also dies, and for a wind-up Alvaro throws himself over a precipice.

This is what Verdi calls "the force of destiny," in reality only a 'chapter of accidents' resulting from great imprudence and unbridled passion on the part of all parties concerned.

There is a very pretty Rataplan chorus in the 3rd act, taken from Schiller

The 'Tribuna' of Montevideo publishes a most extraordinary account of the infernal machines in the Paraguay River. It appears that on the 23rd of May the Brazilian squadron ascended the river with the object of reconnoitring the banks and the river; at a turn in the river the Brazilian gunboat which led the way was brought to a standstill by a large 'chalana' or river boat anchored in the very centre of the stream, and connected with a rancho on the shore by a long wire. The moin the river the captain saw distinctly a canoe push off with two men, make for the chalana, and then suddenly disappear, men and boat. I have been informed on good author ity that this last mentioned parcel of the placards was seen in the waste paper basparcel as sent there, when the man who murdered Mr. Marshall was brought down in September, after being cap tured in Cordova, five months after said placards were sent to the Gefe Politico for distribution.

As soon as intelligence had reached

Rosario in August last that the man had been captured, who had been traced by the mark on Mr. Marshall's horse, that the opera glass had been found, that one of the men had con fessed to the murder, the Gefe Politica at Rosario sent up to the Judge of Crime in Cordova, or to whatever jurisdiction has the custody of criminals there, advising that these men were to be sent down to Rosario "at the expense of Her Majesty's Consul in Cordova." The coolness of this proceed ing took the foreign residents by surprise, for they believed such a thing to be unprecedented in the criminal aunals of any country in the world. But the commission decided on paying the expense of transportation, in the hope that justice would be done on arrival and that foreigners who come out with their money and intelligence to forward the industrial development of the Argentine Republic would have an as surance of protection by the speedy and condigu punishment of these as

Don Pedro Gigena, an active Commissary of Cordova, who is quite a detective policeman up there, came to Rosario with the three men in custody, having conveyed them in a well-barredup carriage, guarded by three soldiers. When he was handing them over to the Gefe Politico at Rosario he was asked if any depositions, or summary of evidence, had been made in Cordova and in the Department where the prisoners were captured, and his answer was, "no such things are done up there unless paid for," and as there was no person at the place to spend money in the matter, he had no legal form to show. He however produced the opera glass, and was ready to prove by circumstantial evidence of an oversion of the principal assassin, José Alarcon, that these men were the actual murderers.

Gigena being under orders to return to Cordoba as soon as his mission to Rosario was completed, the British Consul at the last named place asked from Gigena and the others before Rosario, Dr. Ferreyra, having been teresting to some of your readers:consulted, this gentleman went with "The object of the company is the

Mr. Forde, with a celerity that does him credit, and has earned for him the gratitude of all the English residents of Santa Fé, at once sent up Captain Watson, Secretary of Legation, with justructions to report on the progress of the Captain Watson, accompanied by Consul Hutchinson, came up here [Santa Fé] about a week ago, and had an interview with the Governor. From him they learned that the Judge of Crime, Dr. Argusto, who is also Juez Civil and Juez de Comercio, had a few weeks previously resigned his portfolio of the Criminal Department, and that therefore 'the assassins of Mr. Marshall could not be tried or judged until some other gentleman was found willing to accept the post of Criminal Jrdge.'

Governor Oroño, however, gave an assurance that the first thing to be done, when the new judge is appointed, should be a decision in this case, and Captain Watson and Consul Hutchinson had the gratification of seeing Alarcon, and his brother-assassin, the former having chains on his legs.

Now, gentlemen, the English and other foreign residents of this province, want an assurance likewise that when this Judge is appointed, the British Legation will keep the Governor up to his promise. They desire also to show this disgraceful case before the public through your columns until the Government proves that it has the power and the will to punish an assassiu. and protect the lives of foreigners; or until it declares to the world, as it must necessarily do by a failure in the prosecution, that in the Argentine Republic there is no punishment for a 'gaucho' who not only assassinates an unoffending Englishman, but who boasts that if he escapes he will not leave a single 'gringo' alive in the province.

I am, Gentlemen,

Gentlemen.

Yours respectfully, POLYPHEMUS.

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC.

My fears and suspicions, as mentioned in the 2nd edition of my Prospectus of Hesperidina, have been realized. SPURIOUS IMITATIONS OF HESPERIDINA have appeared in this city and Montevidee, manufactured by liquor-vendors, and it is sufficient to taste these beverages which fill some of our auction-marts, to judge of the difference between my bitters and this spurious Hesperidina which is wholly destitute of the tonic qualities that constitute the chief medicinal element of my wellconstitute the chief medicinal element of my well-known Hesperidina. What do imitators care whether their imitations have this or that unwholesome or deleterious substance, so long as people drink them? Their grand point is to sell, and as the genuine article is in great and increas-ing demand they soize on it for a fraudulent purpose. They try to imitate it in appearance as far aspossible and get an unscrupulous lithographer their punishment, the public must be on its guard, and see that the genuine article is known by the following marks :-

1st. All bottles must have labels like the above heading with my name and signature at foot. 2nd. They must be sold at some of the respectable Hesperidina agencies, as mentioned in the lists published in the city journals.

3rd. The price cannot be under $300 per dozen.

spurious imitation.

4th. The genuine article has never been sold, and never will be sold, at the auction-marts.
